*Una and Ray had a relationship fifteen years ago.
Now that she's twenty-seven, she has come to find him again.*

A little over a year ago, David Harrower's devastating play Blackbird burst upon an unsuspecting Edinburgh Festival. This 'provocative, deeply disturbing play' (Mail on Sunday) tells with unflinching honesty the story of two people destroyed by an illicit and obsessive love. It is an angry, tender and surprisingly compassionate play.

Starring two of Ireland's leading actors, Stephen Brennan and Catherine Walker, the production is directed by Michael Barker-Caven and designed by Joe Vaněk, with lighting by Sinead McKenna.

'A SEARING THEATRICAL EXPERIENCE ... a play that poses endless questions about the dark,
uncontrollable power of desire' Guardian

'A THUNDERSTORM that shakes the earth under you
... a play of need and guilt and retribution and need again'
Sunday Times

'ALMOST BEWILDERINGLY COMPASSIONATE ...
Blackbird proves that integrity can turn intimidating,
inflammatory subject matter into spellbinding material'
Variety
